

Hungry Bill Menu

APPETIZERS

Letters From Hell
I Am Seeing Pilgrims
I Am Building An Ant Farm
I Can Wake Up, Your Hair Is On Fire
I Want To Give You A Sponge Bath
There Is Something In My Room
Poltergeist On My Commode

COVERED DISHES

I Fought the Law
Lawyers, Guns and Money
Folsom Prison Blues
Boom Boom Mancini
I Wanna Be Like Bruno Sammartino
Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald

DESSERTS

Oh, Cindy
Pink Piñata
I Feel Unusual
Designated Trunk Driver
I Wear Plain White T-Shirts
I'm the Guy Dressed Like a Cheerleader*
We're All Gonna Be Lawyers In Hell
Everyone's A Dick
I Am An Amish Jitney Driver

SIDE ORDERS

It
I Partied With The Mansons
My Name Is Gary, Not Gray
Like an Idiot, You Stood by Me
I Want To Take You To George Aiken
Another Night I Sleep On Your Porch
I Am Not Really Dead*

ENTREES

Family Reunion at the Family Division*
I Cannot Live Inside The Mortuary
Amish Criminal Defense Attorney
I Am Not Schizophrenic
Swiss Family Manson
I Am Living In The Subdivision
Guilty Plea
Go Tommy Go
I Am Suspicious
It's Good To Have A Friend With Bolt Cutters
Give A Hug To Your Public Defender
Butt-Shaped Airbag 'Bout To Deploy On Me
Richard The Latvian Hammer
(Baumhammers' Lullaby)

*Denotes new dish
All original dishes by Hungry Bill

www.hungrybill.com
© 2007 Hungry Bill

Hungry Bill Bio

Legend has it that at the age of 12, HUNGRY BILL won a pancake eating contest (37 cornmeal cakes in 21 minutes, but who's counting?) at a church nestled in the rolling hills of Western Pennsylvania's Amish Country. As a boy, his insatiable hunger for pancakes was eclipsed only by his voracious appetite for telling weird and wonderful stories. At age 17, HUNGRY BILL bought his first guitar and began composing unusual melodies to accompany his dark tales. The result was beautiful, haunting ... and hilarious.

Today, his life having grown only more outlandish, HUNGRY BILL is a Pittsburgh attorney. He has maintained his niche as a quirky songwriter for more than 20 years. He shipped his first songs off to the nationally syndicated "Dr. Demento" radio show, where they were played alongside songs by comedians Weird Al Yankovic, Robin Williams, Cheech and Chong and Woody Allen. He began performing in the post-punk '80s at Pittsburgh's Electric Banana, where he opened for hundreds of local and national acts.

Hungry Bill

More recently, he has played at colleges, coffee shops, comedy clubs and the intimate confines of mega-bookstores throughout the mid-Atlantic states. His songs have received college and commercial radio airplay. HUNGRY BILL's background as a Public Defender trial attorney and sole practitioner have given rise to a growing number of songs depicting the dark (yet funny) side of lawyers and the people they represent. In fact, HUNGRY BILL is currently working on a compilation of his legally (and illegally) influenced songs, which will be released on a forthcoming CD titled "The Trial Ballads of Attorney Billy Paxsil."

HUNGRY BILL's CD releases, "My Weird Uncle (1999)," "Hungry Bill Live at Mr. Small's Funhouse (2002)" and "I Am Suspicious (2007)," feature bizarre yet well-crafted, clever songs about people whose lives were previously only featured on "Cops" and in certain low-budget documentaries.

Those who believe the police are watching them, people who give sponge baths for sexual gratification, people who flee the police after being arrested and handcuffed, Amish jitney drivers, Amish criminal defense attorneys, butt-shaped airbags, poltergeists hogging the commode, ninth-grade pranksters who fill piñatas with excrement and a dyslexic graphic artist who botches business cards.

In addition to being an attorney by day, Amish Rocker and self-described "psychoustic storyteller"™ by night, HUNGRY BILL has (despite his slender frame) won several pancake eating contests, can consume more food than most humans, and most importantly can make an awesome pancake.

www.hungrybill.com
© 2007 Hungry Bill